CONGRESS VENUE

National Hall “The Revival Stateroom” – The original seat of the Academy

The mansion today known as the National Hall, located in Opatička 18, originally housed a convent of the Poor Clares. After the order had been disbanded in 1782, the building was left to decay. It was subsequently renovated in the neo-Classical style, with an ornamental façade and an impressive classicist interior, in order to serve as the Drašković family mansion in 1843. The Drašković family never fully settled in their newly-built home and therefore quickly sold it under favourable conditions to the leaders of the Croatian National Revival. It was the venue of numerous balls and great historic events. In 1868, the National Hall became the seat of the Croatian Academy of Sciences and Arts. After the Academy had moved into a new building on Zrinski Square in 1880, the Supreme Court was transferred to the National Hall, which had been state-owned since 1878. The Supreme Court used the building until the end of the Second World War, when it was returned to the Academy.

ABOUT ZAGREB

City of Zagreb

Zagreb is an old Central European city. For centuries it has been a focal point of culture and science, and now of commerce and industry as well. It lies on the intersection of important routes between the Adriatic coast and Central Europe.

When the Croatian people achieved their independence in 1991, Zagreb became a capital - a political and administrative centre for the Republic of Croatia. Zagreb is also the hub of the business, academic, cultural, artistic and sporting worlds in Croatia. Many famed scientists, artists and athletes come from the city, or work in it. Zagreb can offer its visitors the Baroque atmosphere of the Upper Town, picturesque open-air markets, diverse shopping facilities, an abundant selection of crafts and a choice vernacular cuisine.

Zagreb is a city of green parks and walks, with many places to visit in the beautiful surroundings. In spite of the rapid development of the economy and transportation, it has retained its charm, and a relaxed feeling that makes it a genuinely human city.
